The Texas Heart Institute Journal is pleased to announce its association with Editorial Manager, a Web-based submission and peer-review system that is used by hundreds of other journals. We look forward to this technological advance.

Benefits of this system: You will be able to submit manuscripts online, with no paper copies or mailing expenses to worry about. You can monitor the progress of your manuscripts at any time, without waiting for an editor’s assistance. If our experience parallels that of other journals, you should enjoy faster review of your papers.

Beginning May 15, Here’s What to Do:

- Go to texasheart.org/journal to obtain the Internet address for THIJ’s Editorial Manager site.
- Once on the Editorial Manager site, register to use the online submission system.
- Check your e-mail account for a message containing your Username and Password to access the system.
- Submit cover letters, manuscripts (including tables), individual figures, motion images, conditions for publication forms, and permission letters through the system. Most articles require abstracts; be prepared to “paste” a copy of the article abstract into one of the submission windows.
- When all of your files are entered onto the system, they will be converted to a single PDF file, which you will have the opportunity to approve before the manuscript proceeds to the review process.
- All correspondence will be conducted via e-mail. Contact the Journal editors if an exception is necessary.

Caution: The Texas Heart Institute Journal’s Web site is currently being customized and will not be available until May 15. Please do not try to access the site before that time. Any premature attempts to submit manuscripts will be unsuccessful.

Before submitting any paper, consult the Information for Authors section on our Web site at texasheart.org/thijinfoauthors. Of special interest:
